

A Favorite Portland Family Getaway: Iron Springs Resort

Portland Family | May 31, 2014 |

When choosing a place to visit this summer, as a family, what is important to you? Do you want a comfortable place, that's relaxed, fairly close and beautiful? Do you seek a destination that welcomes kids and even dogs, so everyone feels part of the experience?

We want to initially introduce you to, or remind you of, Iron Springs Resort. We discovered this family-run resort several years ago and have been in love with it ever since.

Iron Springs Resort is a little over a three hour drive away from Portland, located just north of Ocean Shores, along Washington's Olympic Peninsula. 24 fully stocked and beautiful luxuriously rustic cabins tucked into lush forests are situated atop an impressive cliffside above the expansive beach. Cabin capacities can accommodate couples only, or house all the way up to two families in a single cabin. All the cabins have vast windows and decks to watch the ocean and setting sun.

Iron Springs Resort is a special, must-do recommended destination for many reasons. It's got gorgeous scenery, it's welcoming, it's unique and many families make visiting here, during all distinctive seasons, an annual tradition. It's so easy to feel as if you're secluded, and a million miles away, yet have access to all the conveniences of a home away from home. Resort owners and staff have made extra efforts to provide all the handy and thoughtful touches within each cabin and throughout the resort. Check out the amenities list here:

As previously mentioned, Iron Springs Resort is family-owned and operated, by the True family, who spent decades going to the resort as guests. We think your family would have lifelong lasting memories from a stay here and encourage you to plan a visit of your own.
