TIMBER LODGE

ORCAS ISLAND

SOAK IN THE SWEEPING VIEW in peace from the deck of this home; after all, you haven't just rented a three-story, four-bedroom, 3,100-square-foot Pacific Northwest log cabin near Rosario, you've rented the 3 acres it sits on (including the waterfall!). The warm, very rustic and very spacious cabin is big enough to sleep 10 (with a "guestroom" tepee on site); a home theater room includes leather movie-theater seats, a 105-inch screen and surround sound. Open year around. $200-$600/night, depending on season and amenities. On Orcas Island via I-5 north and the Anacortes ferry, Eastsound, 445 Lindsay Way; 800.418.7990; timberlodgearcas.com —K.R.

IRON SPRINGS RESORT CABINS

COPALIS, ON THE OLYMPIC PENINSULA

With 25 sleek, wood-sided cabins to choose from, you might have trouble deciding. We'll help: Tiny cabin Number 5 has just one bedroom and a wood stove—and one singular view, which makes it one of the most romantic cabins we've ever seen. Toss in a beach walk, the pounding of the surf and a bonfire in the sand, and you've got the makings of a memorable weekend, indeed. Open year around. $149-$299. About three hours southwest of Seattle near Ocean Shores, via I-5 and State Route 109. Copalis Beach, 3707 Highway 109; 800.380.7950; ironspringsresort.com —K.R.
